PRODUCT SELECTION / VERTICAL BLINDS

Bamboo Vertical Blinds

Bamboo slats in a vertical format, combining grain detail with sideways movement.

Product illustration. The agreed specification and finish determine the supplied product.

Bamboo Vertical places the material's distinctive grain in tall 89mm slats. It is an alternative to a horizontal bamboo blind where a wide opening or the need to draw the blind sideways makes a vertical arrangement more practical.

The finish retains the variation of bamboo, so neighbouring slats will not look perfectly identical. That character can work well beside other natural materials. A sample helps establish tone, while the product image shows how the repeated vertical pattern reads at room scale.

- Bamboo grain in a tall format
- Sideways stacking
- Adjustable screening

BAMBOO VERTICAL BLINDS

Planning your specification

Options to discuss

- Compatible bamboo finishes
- Assessed draw direction
- Track and controls suited to the opening

Practical points

- Natural colour and movement vary
- Long slats need clear space to rotate
- The blind is not a waterproof screen

How it works

The slats tilt on their track and collect at the chosen side or sides when opened. The stack should be positioned with door access and furniture in mind. Clearance is also needed for the slats to turn without touching handles or glazing.

Choosing the finish and details

Tell us about nearby heating, humidity and how the opening is used. We can then assess whether bamboo suits the location and confirm the compatible finish, track and operating arrangement. The quotation sets out the actual supply specification.

Measuring, supply and installation
