PRODUCT SELECTION / DECORATIVE BLINDS

Contour Wood Blinds

A substantial 75mm shaped wood slat with a deeper profile than the standard Venetian.

Product illustration. The agreed specification and finish determine the supplied product.

Contour gives the blind a more substantial timber profile. Its 75mm abachi slats are thicker than the standard flat range, creating a different depth and shadow at the window. It is a useful option when a slim horizontal strip would feel too slight for the surrounding joinery.

The profile remains adjustable, so the room can move between a more open view and a stronger screen. Finish and sheen affect how strongly the contours show. A quiet paint can keep the shape subtle, while a reflective finish makes the surface more pronounced.

- Substantial shaped profile
- Strong horizontal definition
- Adjustable daylight control

CONTOUR WOOD BLINDS

Planning your specification

Options to discuss

- Compatible painted, wood-tone or selected decorative finishes
- Coordinated wood valance
- Suitable manual or powered control after assessment

Practical points

- Thicker slats create a different stack
- Handle and recess clearance must be checked
- Finish and control combinations are confirmed individually

How it works

The deeper slat affects weight, stack and the space needed for rotation. We check the whole opening and intended control before confirming dimensions. A matching top finish helps connect the shaped slats to the headrail area.

Choosing the finish and details

Compare a profile sample with a standard broad slat if you are unsure which proportion suits the room. Identify any handles, opening sashes or shallow recesses, as those practical details may be more important than the overall window width.
