PRODUCT SELECTION / VENETIAN BLINDS

Impression Printed Wood Blinds

Printed wood finishes with controlled pattern and colour, made into a working wooden Venetian.

Impression gives wooden slats a printed decorative surface. It is useful when the design depends on a particular grain effect or tonal pattern rather than the appearance of a plain painted blind. The underlying Venetian format still provides the familiar lift and tilt control.

The print is a finish applied to the wood. A wood-like pattern does not mean that the slat is made from the species suggested by its appearance. We describe the construction separately from the colour so you can make a clear choice without confusing a decorative effect with a timber specification.

- Distinctive printed surface
- A working lift-and-tilt Venetian
- Pattern choices beyond a plain paint finish

IMPRESSION PRINTED WOOD BLINDS

Planning your specification

Options to discuss

- Compatible printed grain and tonal designs
- 50mm or 70mm format where supported
- Coordinated ladder and valance details

Practical points

- Printed appearance is not a claim about timber species
- Pattern and colour must be checked on a physical sample
- Finish and operating combinations require confirmation

How it works

The range is offered in 50mm and 70mm slat formats, subject to the selected finish and operating system. Horizontal repetition becomes more noticeable across a large opening, so consider the overall pattern as well as a close-up sample. The top valance and visible supporting details also affect the finished result.

Choosing the finish and details

Use the finish samples to narrow down the colour family, then ask us to check the chosen pattern against the required blind size. For a row of windows, request the same finish together and tell us which blinds are viewed side by side.
